2ESAE

UR New York was founded and created by Michael "2ESAE" Baca, a born and raised New York City artist who has painted and created throughout his life in Brooklyn and Puerto Rico.

His mixed media art pieces are bold and iconic. Paying homage to New York City streets, evoking a sense of familiarity that resonates with viewers. Michael draws inspiration from his environment and authentic experiences. Some of Michael's go-to mediums include silk-screen, photography and graffiti art.

When he is not brainstorming or experimenting in the studio, Michael travels in the name of artistic philanthropy. Reaching out to and working with the youth, for they are the future of our city, Michael teaches various cultures, graffiti art and the importance of confidence and self expression.

The overall mission is to educate, restore, highlight, and strengthen the very essence of energy and culture in New York City.

AL DIAZ

Al Díaz's career spans five decades. Born and raised Puerto Rican in New York City, by age 15 he was an influential first-generation subway graffiti artist known as "BOMB-ONE." His friendship and artistic collaboration with high school schoolmate Jean-Michel Basquiat on SAMO©, (a late 70s Avant-garde graffiti tag project) has been noted often in contemporary art history. Díaz later contributed percussion to numerous musical recordings and performances, including Basquiat's historic 1983 record, "Beat Bop," (considered to be one of the earliest hip-hop albums).

Díaz is sought-after as an expert of New York City counterculture art. He appears often in publications, as a highlighted speaker for a variety of panel discussions at universities and museums (including Smithsonian Institution, the Brooklyn Museum, The New School and Christie's Education), and has been featured in several films, including Boom for Real: The Late Teenage Years of Jean-Michel Basquiat, BBC's American Masters — Basquiat: Rage to Riches and Jean-Michel Basquiat: The Radiant Child.

Díaz' current creative practice in Brooklyn includes gathering the standard "WET PAINT" signage used throughout the NYC MTA, and reconstructing them to create clever, poignant anagrams in various mixed media and public art formats. His work is shown and privately collected internationally.

In 2018, Diaz authored SAMO©...SINCE 1978, an in-depth, color illustrated history of the street art legacy that he began with Basquiat in the late 70s. A notebook that Díaz made with Basquiat in his teens is currently held in the collection of the Yale University Beinecke Library. In 2022, he co-authored NY City of Kings: A History of NYC Graffiti with Eric Felisbert and Mariah Fox in conjunction with an exhibition documenting graffiti art history.

Al Diaz lives and works in Brooklyn, NY.

CAP ONE

Cap is a world famous graffiti writer who began painting in the Bronx in 1976. In 1979 he began to paint in the street and on trains. A short few years later, CAP was already considered a "King of Graffiti" and made his now infamous appearance in the legendary documentary "Style Wars". Cap is the only artist to paint live directly for the documentary with his CAP throwup. Cap's work has become the most recognized graffiti throw-up to this day. Cap is considered a true outlaw in the world of art and graffiti. He has also painted many graffiti murals in countries all over the world. Cap has collaborated in numerous projects, with brands such as Alife NYC, Frank 151 magazine, and Culture NY.

CITY KITTY

For the past 14 years NYC-based street artist City Kitty has been pasting elaborate, hand-drawn scenes of an adventurous street cat onto buildings and alleyways throughout North America and Europe. Best known for his large-scale drawings of cats and humans with extraneous facial features, City Kitty has created an alternate urban reality with a touch of double vision and a psychedelic twist. From 2010-2012 he lived in Bushwick in a live work studio where his character City Kitty was born inspired by the gangs of cats of either side of the building.

As of 2021, he started the incredibly entertaining and informative art podcast Scratching the surface with City Kitty covering all things art. As of 2025 he's produced almost 200 interviews featuring authentic conversations about life within the arts.

His work is featured prominently on the streets of New York, London, Barcelona and Berlin, among others.

EASY

Easy is a world-renowned artist who was born in Brooklyn, Shortly after his birth his family relocated to Harlem then the Bronx New York. He has a fond interest in music, astronomy, physiology, anatomy and sports. After moving to Manhattan, Easy was initiated into graffiti by his cousin Josh 5, who had a profound influence on him. He was writing the tag "LC" before a female classmate gave him the nickname "EASY" because of his smooth demeanor. He immediately shifted his focus to the arts abandoning all the dreams of becoming a baseball player and a doctor.

Easy began engaging in chalkboard battles with Keith Haring on the MTA subway stations. While writing his legendary tags, Haring was drawing his iconic characters with them both battling to see who could cover all the MTA Chalkboards first. EASY, Josh 5, and Joz began painting hundreds of trains on the subway lines while simultaneously painting the streets. They created a historic street movement that influenced decades of artists to come.

Easy's tag became the blueprint for what was considered an iconic hand style. Keeping the entire movement alive while there was a crackdown on painting and vandalizing of MTA trains. Easy's work has been featured in many music videos featuring artists such as Wu tang Clan, KRS One, and Grammy award winner Macklemore to name a few. Even lending his hand style to be used in the hit video game Grand Theft Auto 5.

Easy has transitioned his classic style and new techniques into galleries, a museum, and collector's homes worldwide. His work speaks for itself. Easy was featured in countless books, magazines including The New Times. He was recently asked to be a part of the reconstruction and resurrection of the Late Jean Michel Basquiat's famed studio in Manhattan. After 30 years, Easy was one of the few artists selected to be a part of the re-opening of this this legendary studio. Easy shows no signs of stopping with an arsenal of works being created and waiting to be seen by the art world. From the streets to galleries Easy does it all. Easy has started a new chapter of street-art by installing his sculptured tag and art works throughout New York and beyond. Easy is also in the process of writing a book and just released his first collectible.

EPIC UNO

Introducing Juan Benet, a Puerto Rican artist whose creative journey has spanned continents and disciplines. Growing up on the vibrant island of Puerto Rico, Juan's artistic spark was ignited at a young age. At the tender age of 10, he discovered the captivating world of graffiti, where he found a unique form of expression and an avenue to showcase his creative energy.

Making a life-changing decision at the age of 18. Driven by his artistic ambitions, he left his beloved Puerto Rico and ventured to the bustling streets of Brooklyn, NY, to attend Pratt Institute to perfect his craft, earning a BFA in Fine Arts. Armed with newfound knowledge and skills, Juan began his career as a designer, lending his creative prowess to various projects and earning recognition for his innovative approach. Over the course of two decades, he rose through the ranks, ultimately assuming the esteemed role of Creative Director.

In the midst of his successful design career, he devoted himself to further exploring his roots in graffiti art. Spending countless hours in the urban landscape, he immersed himself in the vibrant graffiti scene. With time, dedication, and unwavering commitment, Juan developed a distinct style that seamlessly merged graffiti, street art, and urban pop art.

Known today as Epic Uno, his artistic versatility knows no bounds. His work has graced the walls of esteemed galleries, showcasing his captivating compositions and storytelling. Simultaneously, he has left an indelible mark on the urban landscape, painting large-scale murals that command attention and infuse life into forgotten spaces.

At the heart of Epic's artistic identity lies a captivating character known as Skully. This iconic skull, with its enigmatic presence, has become a central figure in his body of work. Through Skully, Epic explores themes of mortality, identity, and the beauty found within, inviting viewers to ponder the profound layers beneath the surface.

Today, Epic stands as a testament to the power of dedication and artistic evolution. A multitalented force to be reckoned with, he seamlessly navigates between his role as a seasoned Creative Director and his undying passion as an artist. With his iconic style and Skully by his side, Epic continues to push boundaries, challenge perceptions, and leave an indelible mark on the world of art.

ERIC ORR

Eric Orr is an artist and designer from New York City. He pioneered the substitutive style of graffiti art in the late '70s, eschewing “writing” in favor of visual iconography, and in the process, created the distinctive robot that would become his signature and alter-ego. In 1984, he collaborated with pop artist Keith Haring on a series of drawings in the NYC subways that featured his “robot head” character alongside Haring’s iconic “radiant baby”. In 1986, he created and published four issues of “Rappin’ Max Robot”, the first Hip-Hop comic book.

He has designed and illustrated images, covers, and logos for musical artists including Jazzy Jay, Busy Bee, Positive K, Jazzy Joyce, Masters Of Ceremony, Ultimate Force, Lord Finesse, Diamond D, and Diggin’ In The Crates (D.I.T.C.); worked with and exhibited alongside such notables as Futura, Seen, Doze, and Kaws; and his work has been featured in publications including The New York Times, Juxtapoz, Mass Appeal, Sketchel, Complex, Hyperallergic, and the International Graffiti Times. In 2014, his personal archives were acquired by Cornell University for the Hip-Hop collection in their archive of rare books and manuscripts, and in 2015, Columbia University added copies of his works to their permanent collection. In 2024 Orr unveiled his colossal public art creation of an 18 foot, 7,000 pound steel sculpture of “Rappin Max Robot” made in partnership with Brooklyn based non-profit Welder Underground. The robot is currently on display at Brooklyn Borough Hall Plaza. Keep an eye out for Eric and his infamous robot at the highly anticipated re-opening of The Hip Hop Museum in the Bronx in 2025.

YES ONE

YES ONE also known as “Ya Tu Sabe” is a Bronx based artist with graffiti roots starting during junior high in 1983. At the age of 10, he developed a friendship and mentorship with graffiti pioneer Smiley 149 R.I.P on his regular visits to the local arcade to play Asteroids. The duo would check out the fresh art on subway trains. The creativity in the air sparked his inspiration to start painting burners, and some say stylized lettering with arrows became symbols of his youth.

YES’s art often reflects the complexities of city life, touching on themes of identity, community, and resilience. He engages viewers by challenging perceptions with brilliant usage of new and recycled materials which forge together forming intricate creations. Beyond the studio, YES ONE is deeply invested in the creative community, often collaborating with fellow artists and participating in various art initiatives. His commitment to using art as a means of positive expression resonates with New Yorkers and collectors globally. YES ONE continues to inspire and provoke thought through his craft capturing the hearts of those who encounter his work on the streets and in the galleries.

YES ONE’s murals and art have blessed the walls of multiple parts of Brooklyn for many years.

ZERED BASSETT

Zered Bassett is an artist and pro-skateboarder based in Cape Cod, MA. Bassett is legendary in skateboarding for his high-speed technicality, creative spot selection, and dedication to fundamental New York style street skating. For over 15 years Bassett lived in Brooklyn and Lower Manhattan before heading back to the Cape to continue his artistic ventures.

His photography, called 'Paper Skaters' stems naturally from this unique perspective, capturing the essence of skateboarding and the prized moments that define its irreverent appeal. Pasting the photos and collages onto a wall completes the circle, from street, to photo, back to the street, and back to Bassett. His photography installations have evolved into fine art in the form of abstract paintings inspired by the layers of posters on the walls he applied his 'Paper Skaters' around the world.

Currently you will find Zered skating the globe, or home in his studio creating impeccably crafted paintings, murals, and silkscreens as he continues to explore his journey in the skate and art worlds.

KOZ

Silvertuna Studios is the brainchild and production arm of filmmaker and graffiti artist, Koz. Born and raised on Long Island, New York, Koz was constantly surrounded by art via his artist-parents who fully supported his artistic endeavors from the get-go. While it was comic books and the art of Michaelangelo that ignited his love for drawing, it was graffiti, the art witnessed on the street while on skating missions in Brooklyn, Queens and Manhattan, that set the bar and trajectory for his creative life. As a teenager, Koz was deeply impressed and transfixed by the scrawls of CAP, JA, PACE SWK, FIB, JEST, EASY, QUIK just to name a few. Professionally, everything changed for the better when he began obsessively filming himself and his fellow skateboarders during the early era of VHS, Hi8 and Mini DV recording Days.

In his late 20's Koz went to work for the production company Vidiots Inc. in Manhattan, Koz would meet his filmmaking mentor and now Co-Owner of Silveruna Studios, Jeff Fisher, a Twelve-time Emmy Award winner. Within four years, Koz worked for over 20 different networks on more than 40 tv shows. After Vidiots Koz left to work for CBS where he was an Avid Media composer engineer, and later a photographer. His photography was showcased throughout their New York City headquarters. After a few years at CBS Koz headed to NBC to work on Talk Stoop as a camera operator and set photographer, where he was nominated for an emmy for his camera work. Koz left NBC to start Silvertuna Studios, his Queens based production company, he premiered two episodes of a six-part series about graffiti artists in NYC called "The Blackbook Diaries" at the Angelika Theater. Currently, Koz is still working on the remaining episodes of the series, curating shows and working closely with the likes of legendary graffiti artist EASY, Chris RWK, Al Diaz (SAMO), Skateboarders Bam Margera and Zered Bassett as well as film actress, Kathrine Narducci. His goal is to have one of his films premiere worldwide.

Koz has run galleries in Williamsburg and Downtown Brooklyn, and created and curated exhibitions and murals throughout the US.
